

You see a police officer

We see a police officer named Stephanie Gillespie who is effecting positive development in at-risk youth, who is dedicated to the community, safer neighborhoods and streets, who leads citywide efforts to reduce chronic homelessness and break the cycle of poverty and addiction, who has collected hundreds of shoes and warm coats for underprivileged families, who knows every social service provider in the city by name and is recognized on state and local levels for law enforcement practices that go above and beyond the call of duty.

The things you don't think about, the City provides. Your sales tax dollars help support many city services and programs. When you shop in Arlington, you shop for Arlington. Arlington Shoppportunities mean Safer Neighborhoods.
